The Centre for Constitutional Law, Policy and Governance, at Faculty of Law, ICAFI University, Himachal Pradesh, focuses on the areas related to constitutional law, national policy, and governance. It provides an effective platform to facilitate academic dialogues, debates, and discussions which are sometimes not possible in the classroom method of teaching. It also attempts to ignite curiosity in the minds of students to think beyond the syllabus and to engage themselves in matters related to national policy and governance.

The centre further attempts to create and disseminate the knowledge related to constitutional jurisprudence in the country. It analyses not only laws made and amended by the legislature but also studies landmark judgments passed by the higher judiciary in the country. It also looks towards the constitutions of other countries to draw a comparative analysis to accommodate constructive academics.

The other objectives of the centre include research and publications, conducting seminars, competitions, and other activities related to academics.
